To whom it may concern,

Sara Clark has worked for me for the past five years. During that time I found her to be an exceptional employee. She progressed in her responsibilities from med tech to staff assistant. Her most recent role as staff assistant requires broad knowledge of insurance company rules, hospital policies, and my personal protocols concerning patient care. We care for a lot of chronically ill people and preparing them for surgery required great attention to detail and excellent interaction skills. She also worked well in a leadership role in my practice.

I would recommend her without reservation to subsequent employers.

If I can be of further help please don't hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

Timothy Lane, MD
